Not only had the presiflent done much to annihilate sectional prejudices, but he had done many things to commend him to Democrats.

Senator Has Doubts.

"I doubt," he said, impressively, at any time introduce a bill to subsidize the north Atlantic ships and he (Galsucceeded in electing its candidate in linger) would support it. 1904 we would find him striving as parnestly, as zealously and as fearlessly in sustaining the rights of all the beople against those who unite to op-press the masses, as is the present

He also commended the president for hitiating the merger-suits and for his position in support of the railroad legislation which, he said, "is giving life to a Democratic principle."

Ambition Is Honorable.

He reiterated his confidence in the president's sincerity and patriotism, adding that if he is ambitious to attain a niche in the nation's pantheon alongside of Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln he could not be blamed. Along about Saturday, we're going to recall the O'coat bargains we've talked about for a few days. The coats are strictly winter garments. They didn't move as fast as others this season--not because they aren't as good, but because we bought over largely. The price has been put 'way down.

There's good savings to pocket if you come between now and the end of the week.

MRS. C. A. CANFIELD, MURDERED IN LOS ANGELES, HAD MANY CLOSE FRIENDS IN SALT LAKE CITY

Mrs. C. A. Canfield.

Mrs. C. A. Canfield, whose tragic death is reported from Los Angeles, is well remembered by Salt Lake friends who met her here a year or more ago as a guest of Mrs. Thomas Kearns. Friends who met her at that time recall her as a particularly handsome and striking woman.

The story of Mrs. Canfield's death is in brief as follows:

She was murdered on the front porch of her home at 803 South Alvarado street Saturday afternoon at 5:35 o'clock by Morris Buck, a coachman formerly employed by the family. She had refused the man's demand for $2,600. He shot her down; then rolled her unconscious body over and fired into it a second time. After he had stood for a quarter of an hour beside his dying victim, pistol in hand, while a crowd gathered in front cofficer Charles L. Foster, who captured him in the Westlake boathouse.

POOLE'S FAMOUS FEAT.

(Portland (Me.) Advertiser.) Lucius Poole, a brother of William Poole, the librarian, whose name is perpetuated in "Poole's Index," and who died in Boston within the past year, was known thoughout the country for his rare skill in restoring and repairing old documents and reprints. He lived for thirty years in a house at the South End, Boston, with three congenial spirits, one a collector of Dickensana, the second of Napoleonana and the third a collector of first editions. Poole was a collector too—of books, let-ters and programmes relating to the stage. He had a remarkable faculty for matching old paper, and could put a corner or a patch on a letter or a playbill so neatly that it could be noticed only under a magnifying glass. Mr. Poole's famous feat of splitting a magazine page into four leaves or layers was brought about by an English inlayer, who showed Mr. Poole a page split in three leaves with the printing on it unmarred. The American said that he could do all that the English-
